

Regina Snow 7's, or Keeping Reason at Bay Movie Title-The Condor Has Landed

We should call ourselves the Assassins when we travel. That's one of many lessons that were learned by the unsuspecting Wasps, lured into performing a "Bay of Pigs" style assault on Regina. Darren Carter showed his Condor cunning by persuading six mild-mannered Wasps (Todd "look, snow!" Andrews, Roddy "the mute" McLeod, Scoop "Lego" MacAulay, Stevie "two tries", Darren "are we there yet" Raesides, and Scott "not in the hot-tub" Harland) to come for an easy take-over of a quiet town on the prairies. Well equipped with Corona and Peppermint Schnapps (official tour guide and breakfast drink), the tourists were obviously feeling overconfident when they ignored the Danger, High Intake of Calories sign at the entrance to the bar in Moosomin. The name has now been explained-it's as close as a man can come to saying 'moose women' while female Wayne Ritchot look-alikes lead him away by his lower lip.

Our narrow escape resulted in Scoop popping out his shoulder for the third time since leaving Winnipeg, and the two cars circling the hotel for twenty minutes looking for each other. "Wait", said Harland, "let's call them on the cell phone". Which he couldn't remember how to operate outside of Manitoba. Technology is wasted on anyone who once thought there was actually a pumpernickel grain.

Upon arriving in Regina and losing each other several more times, the intrepid mercenaries found a...BAR! Yes, in Regina!! Scoop opened the door, causing his shoulder to pop out again, prompting the comment "that boy comes apart easier than Lego". The bar was overstaffed, in that there was not one customer in the place before we arrived. We were directed to the bar of the night-apparently there are only enough partyers in Regina to fill one bar a night. The women at the bar we went to had clearly been warned about the coming invasion, since even potent weapons like slurring and falling down proved unable to lure any of them away for "questioning".

Rugby the next day was predictable-we drank way too much, beat everybody-including the Grads (twice), and MacAulay had to spend twenty minutes looking for his scapula. The most strenuous event of the day was picking our team name. Dishonourable mentions go to 'Squid-Men', 'Team Nanook', and 'Friends', with the final nod given to 'Canus Borealis' (Dogs of the North). Todd Andrews withheld his approval, not believing that 'Canus' was latin for 'Dog' (and much preferring his name- 'Wizards of Oz'). After the tourney, the "how many drunk men can you put in a hot-tub before a fight breaks out" contest was held. Fourteen, in case you were curious. Someone came up with a rule that newcomers to the tub had to buy a round for everyone already there, resulting in our never having to leave. Clearly, sitting in hot water and drinking beer was not eventful enough for Andrews, McLeod. And Harland, who rushed outside to roll in the snow "because it's there" quipped the trio. The event was caught on film, and will be featured in a new series of 'Hinterland, Who's Who'. Darren Raesides proved to be far too easily misled when he went out for a snow-roll merely because we told him to- well, it was that or buy us all a beer. Important note-don't ever spill a beer around the Condors.

That night's festivities were marred only by an excess of clothing worn. Toddy tried hard to handle the constantly changing identities that Harland was saddling him with- from just having arrived from Oz that day, to living in L.A. as Mel Gibson's accent trainer. Always quick on his toes, the self-proclaimed 'try-scoring freak' responded admirably, applying a range of accents that would have put Peter Sellers to shame. Not so the Gaelic Gibberer. Even when asked to say something to charm a pretty lass with his accent, the debonair McLeod blurted "Hello". When asked to use all of his available grey matter and actually make a sentence so as to woo the bonnie girl, the smooth as nails Roddy mumbled "like what". A swing and a miss.

McLeod's antics at Darren Carter's family abode have earned him a new moniker-Rec Room Roddy. Ask him. The night ended in a lights-out pillow fight in the hotel room. Steve and Harland had just snuck up on each other when Raesides knocked everyone out with a mattress. Cheater.

There's never anything good to write about the drive home.

NICKNAMES MADE EASY

Often times I've been asked "Why do they call him that?" or "Where did he get that name?". Now you no longer have to sit in envy of the flashy nicknames around you; you can create your own hip moniker, or give one to a friend as a present he'll never forget. All you need to change your dull identity is my book 'NICKNAMES MADE EASY'.

Here are some examples of the useful information you'll find in this essential manual:

First syllable, last name method

ex. 'Mac'- Guy McKim, 'Nick'- Gary Nicholson, 'Saint'- Rob St. Germain
This is a popular, but not fool-proof method. If we called everyone with a Mac or Mc prefix 'Mac', we'd end up with more name repetition than the town of Winkler. Some names lend themselves to shortening, many don't, such as Znidarec., and calling Howie Yip 'Yip' is no longer a nickname (see Definition of a nickname, Chapter 2). It is especially important to be careful with certain names, like all the tempting ways there are to use the first syllable of Buddick. Deriving nicknames from Adobafourpoku and Kahatapatiya require completely different procedures, such as jaw surgery.

Animal method

The animal kingdom is an abundant source of handy handles to apply where fitting (or where not fitting- see 'Cheetah' under Sid Fontoura in the Contrary Nicknames section). The most popular names are of powerful, capable creatures, kings of the wild that men want to be associated with, such as 'Tuna', and 'Porpoise-Boy' Fred Redden. (I made that last one up, but I like it).

Obvious Characteristic Method

'Scoop' MacAulay, not from his newspaper skills, but from pleading for extra servings at the BDI.

'Psycho' Ward King. No explanation required.

And Much More

Buy the book to find out how to stick your friends with names like 'Duncan', and 'Ebola' and 'Widow', where handles like 'Crash' and 'Gumby' came from, and what to do if someone tries to call you 'Melonhead'.

$NAFU

This year there will be cash prizes for teams in the 10-a-side Competitive division of the August Long Weekend Tourney. Over 10,000 dollars will be divided between the top four teams on the men's side, and the top team on the women's side. There will still be a social round of games for slugs like the Pirates, and midnight rugby is a certainty.

Because of the increased value of winning SNAFU, the club wants to encourage everyone, especially our top 10-a-side players, to make sure that they are available for the August Long Weekend.

Money for Rugby. It's about time.

CAMBRIDGE HOTEL Bringing Joy to the World

SONGS

Maybe it's our fault. We should've sung it more often, or spent more time on educating others. The embarrassing fact is, SOME OF YOU DON'T EVEN KNOW OUR OWN SONG!

Now, I know that there haven't been many singalongs at the 'Bridge lately, and we should remedy that as soon as possible, but when we do sing our club songs, we look like those crowd shots during national anthems where everyone's lips move, but not at the same time. Learn the words, so you can stop looking like a bunch of goldfish.

Stray Wasps' Strut

(sung to the tune of 'Stray Cats' Strut)

(Snap fingers to summon Wasps)

Oooo Oooo Oooo Oooo (4 times)

Black and Gold stray Wasps sitting in a bar

Oooo Oooo Oooo Oooo

Ain't got enough strength to go very far

Oooo Oooo Oooo Oooo

I'm dead drunk but I don't care

I crawl right by with my beer in the air

Stray Wasps Strut, I'm a rugby player

Playing rugby football, HEY, Everywhere

Thrown from the game by a mean old man

I get my belly from a Labatt's can

Oooo Oooo Oooo Oooo

Oooo Oooo Oooo Oooo

I don't bother chasing (target) around- OH NO!

I slink down the pitches, looking for a try

I go to the Cambridge if it's win, lose, or tie!

Crying the blues in the referee's ear

Now, Stray Wasps we've got nothing to fear,

They wish they could be as carefree and wild

Cuz we got Wasp class and we got Wasp style

Oooo Oooo Oooo Oooo

Oooo Oooo Oooo Oooo

Oooo Oooo Oooo Oooo (quietly)

BZZZZZZZZZZZ

If You Want To Go To Heaven

If you want to go to Heaven when you die

When you die!

If you want to go to heaven when you die

When you die!

Where a black and yellow bonnet

With the Wasps written on it

If you want to go to Heaven when you die

YEEEEHAHH!

Edmonton Tour Song

In keeping with the Wasps' tradition of having the best songs wherever we go, the producers of the Rag have spared no expense, approaching the greatest song writing minds available.

Andrew Lloyd Weber seemed keen, until he figured out that our 'Special Request from the King' meant Ward King, the Duke of Chuckwood. Elton John just hissed and spat at us, and Springsteen observed that "You guys sing my stuff already, at the end of every party. Do you have any idea what you fellas owe me in royalties?" We ran. Leonard Cohen was available, but with the number of veterans going to Edmonton this year, we thought the weekend would already be dark and tragic enough.

So we followed the oft-tested method of our fore-editors. We got drunk and parodied something popular.

Here is this year's Edmonton Tour Song.

Wasp on the Road

(sung to the tune of 'King of the Road')

Waspies at the Big Event

RugbyFest Tournament

No sleep, no food, no sense

I can't wait for O.T.S.

When you put that beer mug in my hand

I'll open my eyes and try to stand

I'm a man of beer by more beer

Wasp on the Road

Playing drunk at Ellerslie

Pirates bought the referee

Can't pass, can't catch, can't kick

First scrum both props got sick

I know I can't take any more booze

But I'll drink- win or lose

I'm a man of beer by more beer

Wasp on the Road

Every hotel throws us in the street

For being naked and indiscreet

We get drunk in every town

And every bar that's open we close down

I sing-Waspies at the big event

Rugbyfest tournament

No sleep, no food, no sense

I can't wait for OTS

When you put that beer mug in my hand

I'll open my eyes, and try to stand

I'm a man of beer by more beer,

Wasp on the Road

Wasp on the Road

WASP ON THE ROAD!

Delusions of Grandeur, by Todd Andrews

"Wizard of Oz on Ice" takes on new meaning as Andrews opens up at Gord Bartley Stadium

After the initial excitement of the formation of the STD (Sid, Todd and Darren) line (see article in Nov 95 issue of the Rag), this combination has consistently failed to post the numbers expected of them. As a result, the WHA (Wasps Hockey Association) has copped plenty of flak for the deal which sent the under-achieving Steve Tait back to the AHL (Australian Hockey League) in return for Andrews and future considerations in what some insiders say has been the worst trade since Selanne was sent to the Mighty Ducks.

While this combination could have made many excuses for their poor 95/96 and early 96/97 form (such as opposing players skating too fast and skilfully), they have put this behind them. Only Roberts' Sahara-like point scoring drought continues, with both Andrews and Raeside making their presence felt for Morden's Marauders. This is illustrated in the following excerpt from the official Maple Leafs Monthly magazine 'Scouting Hockey's Internationals for Toronto' or SHIT :

"...one guy who has caught our eye is a little known Australian Tom Andrews in Winnipeg. A few weeks ago he scored the opening goal and turned a dour struggle into a wide open affair which his team eventually lost 36-34 at Gord Bartley Stadium. He continued his scoring feast with a lightning backhand through the 5-hole last week and we'll be keeping a close eye on him, particularly once he improves his post-scoring celebration moves."

(Editor's note- Andrews post-goal dance was a stick-mounting, intended slide that was clearly lacking some essential victory move ingredients, such as motion)

30th Anniversary RugbyFest

This year marks 30 times that the Wasps have made our annual pilgrimage to Rugby's Mecca- OTS Park! Despite our lemming-like approach to the weekend, survival rates have been high, so there are a lot of tour veterans getting laced up (or just laced) opposite the Pirates. Talk is that the Pirates will be putting some of their more senior players in for a special match, and Disney has already bid for the rights to do the Return of Con Dragu story. Mr. Eisner, the big-eared mouse's spokesman, said the movie would be a cross between Free Willy and Rocky XII.

The rooms have been booked. We are listed as the Winnipeg Wasps at that most forgiving of establishments, the Riviera -now the Ramada Riviera (wonder why they changed managements?). The change to Ramada means that we no longer have to pretend that we're handball players. Good thing, since last year it was difficult to maintain the illusion when 24 drunks carrying rugby balls, rugby boots, and wearing rugby t-shirts. Subtle as Blake Morden and Tuna at the Transcona Inn.

We tried to book the rooms this year as Rob Bernard, but his name caused their computer to go into spasms. Apparently, in response to public outcry about his behaviour last year, the Alberta Legislature reinstated an old by-law banning anyone from bringing undomesticated wild animals across provincial lines. Damn.

Scott Harland is coordinating rooms and transportation. Call 237-4559 if you're going, whether you have a vehicle to take, roommate preferences, and if you've made your own arrangements, give Scott a call so he can arrange things with the Pirates' Welcoming Committee (Larry, Darryl, and Darryl, a 1958 half-ton, and 8 quarts of Ma's Hooch).

Ron Enberg and Saint are handling the jerseys. Call Ron if you want a 30th anniversary jersey, unless he's already called you.

THE WASP RAG

WINNIPEG WASPS R.F.C. Est. 1965

SPRING ISSUE

Wasps lose in Festival Snow 7's final to celibate, abolitionist catholics. Said Captain Morden, "We wanted them win since it appears to be the only fun they're allowed. We couldn't just let them win, so we got real drunk to give them an advantage".

Indoor and outdoor practices have started!

Pac-man attends first practice, coaches check Farmer's Almanac "We just want to know what other bizarre occurrences to expect this year- Famine, Fire, the Pirates winning SNAFU".

30th EDMONTON RUGBYFEST for WASPS! Preparations well under way.

MacAulay finally wins at Liar's Dice, playing alone. Accuses self of cheating.

Scott Harland becomes new Rag Chief in hostile takeover from Todd Andrews. "It's about time someone ran this sheet who acknowledges vowels and the letter 'R'", spouted Harland from his Florida villa "but don't print that".

Investigative reporter researches Shane Hiebert "I feel that it's no coincidence that he was both a magician, and worked for Manitoba Lotteries", stated Diane Sawyer. Pac-man agreed, fuming "I knew it was magic. I had those machines figured out, I know I did! Only sleight of hand, or supernatural powers could explain my losses." Pacholuk denied being involved in Nicholson's dreaded Sport Select gang.

Nicknaming Made Easy- book review inside!

Check out the useful nicknaming tricks from the people who brought you 'Nick', 'Mac', 'Melonhead', 'Tuna', 'Spam-Boy', 'Ebola', 'Gumby', 'Crash', 'Psycho', 'Pacman', and 'Speed-Bump' and countless other abuses to personal dignity.

Why Todd is now known as 'Assie'(sic)Andrews, and why the Thursday night hockey league is looking for a new trophy engraver.

In more hockey news, Sid "Icebutt" Roberts will play opposite Gordie Howe in Howe's return game.

Sneered Roberts "He's 69 years old, how hard could it be?" Nicholson is accepting wagers.
